ERIC SCHMAUTZ

W hen Eric Schmautz's daughter Molly was born, it was less than two months before the Rotary International Convention in São Paulo, Brazil. But there was never any question: Of course the baby would go. Schmautz had been a Rotarian since he was 18 years old himself, and Rotary is where he met his wife and many of his friends. "Rotary has been integral to our social fabric," he says. "The majority of our friends are Rotarians, not necessarily in our club, but across the board. We probably have friends in 30 or 40 clubs." And Molly, now four, is growing up Rotarian. "She interacts with the Rotarians as if they're her peers," says Schmautz. "She's been to every district conference, every Rotary institute, every service project, most club meetings." This year she took a trip to Germany. "Hamburg," says her proud father, "was Molly's fifth convention."
